

Rules

1. Students can write only their vocabulary words on the Bingo card (no hints as to what each word means).
2. The teacher calls out only definitions or synonyms to the class; each student has to match the teacher's definition with the proper word on his/her sheet.
3. Students can shout "Bingo!" if they get five across, down, or diagonal. The winning student must confirm that the words on his/her Bingo board match the definitions that have been called out by the teacher. If no one gets Bingo, students play until all the slots are covered.
4. Once one student has won "Bingo," the game can be repeated with other lessons, or continue playing and have multiple winners. The first Bingo winner can help call out new definitions and check off winning Bingo cards if there are multiple winners.

Variation: To win, a student must use all five of the "Bingo" words in one or two sentences that make sense.

Fill in each square of the Bingo card with one of your vocabulary words. If you do not have enough vocabulary words to fill all the squares, you may use each word multiple times to fill the board. First, use each word twice. If the board is still not completed, fill in each word a third time, etc. And play fair! Don't put the same words in the same row up, down, or across.
